MONTPELIER.

The city hall committee will ask for bids on the new city hall in about ten days. This is the opinion of members of that committee. The specifications and details have been again examined and certain changes noted in the old plans. Another meeting will be held to-night. This will be the third meeting this week. It is in hopes to have the dirt flying in the city hall excavation May 1 to May 15. The charges made in the specifications will be gone over again to-night, when they are typewritten and put in shape so that they may determine if anything has been omitted. Then they will be sent to Architect Adams to put in shape for bidders, and ten days ought to see the plans with contractors to figure on.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Miss Pingree on Style and the Stage.

"It has come under my observation on many occasions," says Miss Helen Pingree, the charming leading lady with the Adam Good company, which will be the attraction at Barre opera house for the week commencing Monday, April 5th, in a repertoire of high class plays, "that the fads and fashions of fair femininity in these 20th century times, are dictated and designed by the people of the stage." "Pronounced innovations in the way of headgear or gowns are, of course, what the designer of theatrical costumes is all ways on the lookout for, and every theatrical producer of consequence counts as his most valuable lieutenant, a costume designer."

"I will admit that the wardrobe of the player folk is oft times exaggerated, but there are innumerable instances where the exaggerated form of stage dress has been copied by society, and even the exaggerated model accentuated." "Probably ninety per cent. of the gowns and hats worn by women of the world are taken from models originally created by the theatrical costumer, so you see the world of fashion owes much to the stage."

Miss Pingree, in addition to her well earned popularity as an actress, has a clever considerable distinction as a designer and creator of striking gowns and tasteful millinery. All of the gowns she wears in the several plays in her repertoire are of her own designing, and are considered to be equal in every way to the best examples of the Parisian mode.

MISS HELEN PINGREE, WITH ADAM GOOD COMPANY, AT THE BARRE OPERA HOUSE ALL NEXT WEEK.

SUPPLY OF PALMS SHORT.

Scarcity Caused by Fires and Heavy Rains in Florida.

New York, April 2.—There will be fewer palms distributed in Catholic churches this year than heretofore. According to the reports of well known business men in New York city, the shortage in New York City alone will total fully fifty thousand stalks, and one of the largest churches in the city will not have any to distribute. The scarcity was caused by numerous fires and heavy rains in that section of Florida where palms are grown. One stalk is usually sufficient to supply ten persons.

WILLIAM'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Have you neglected your kidneys? Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your kidneys and bladder? Have you pains in loins, side, back, groin and bladder?
